

The BUF Buzz

Berea Urban Farm

Berea, KY 40403
June 21, 2016

In this Issue: New rain catchment systems, supplying food to a local restaurant, and the Bluegrass Sustainable Business Summit!

Save the Date:

Celebrate the Harvest

September 10, 2016
Event details to come!

Rain Catchment for the High Tunnel

Mark Walden and Chris McKenzie from Grow Appalachia take measurements from the BUF high tunnel to install two rainwater catchment systems that will capture 1,100 gallons. One system will use energy produced by solar PV panels. Stay tuned as this dynamic demonstration project is installed.

First Delivery to Noodle Nirvana!

Berea's newest local restaurant, Noodle Nirvana, receives a delivery from the BUF. Our scallions were included in the noodle dishes offered at the restaurant's pre-opening tasting event on Sunday. We will supply several vegetables and herbs throughout the year to Noodle Nirvana.

Cheyenne speaks at Lexington Conference!

Cheyenne Olson, SB Executive Director, spoke alongside other guests from Washington D.C., Lexington, and Louisville at the Bluegrass Sustainable Business Summit. Cheyenne highlighted the BUF and the Old Town Urban Agriculture District as models for communities seeking to increase their local food economy.